

Insurance Times: Life software study underway

October 29, 2002, Vol. XXI No. 22

BRIMFIELD, Mass.— Insurers and software companies can participate in The Automated Risk Assessment Systems Report 2002 at www.tmsolutionsinc.com. The study of automated risk assessment systems for life and health underwriting is being conducted by Thomson Management Solutions.

The report will cover software that helps underwrite individual life, health, disability, long-term care and major medical policies. Both commercial software from vendors and in-house systems developed by insurers and reinsurers will be included, and both vendors and users will be surveyed. The firm is looking for survey sponsors among both vendors and insurers. All survey participants will receive a discounted price for the report, whether they order it now or later.